FIVE WOMEN, MAN LOST IN BOAT ACCIDENT

Plans Made For Jobless Aid Dance In Richmond

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

There strayed into our possession the other evening a photograph that brings back to mind "the good old days."

* * * *

The picture is dated July 4, 1907, and shows a proud gentleman, wearing a beard and mustache, sitting in an automobile.

* * * *

The gentleman is Dr. C. R. Blake, at the present time city health commissioner.

* * * *

Along side of the doctor is sitting a serious faced youth, wearing a broad himmed hat, a light suit, a white tie and has his hands folded upon his lap.

* * * *

The boy is Herb Blake, city sanitary inspector, and Kiwaninan.

* * * *

Dr. Blake looks proud and dignified with the beard and mustache and he is attired in what the well dressed motorists wore in those days.

* * * *

Upon his head is a cross between a yachting cap and a skimmer affected by ferry deckhands. In those days it was known as a motorist's cap.

* * * *

He is wearing a long white duster—with a cute rolled collar effect. His gloves are long leather gauntlets, and the one hand that rests upon the steering tiller, is grasping a cigar. Even in those days the Doc smoked cigars.

* * * *

The car in which the two are so proudly seated is an old Auto-Car of the vintage of 1907—one of the few of the newfangled "auty-mo-biles" in this city.

* * * *

From our view of the contraption, it had to be steered by a tiller lever mounted on the left hand side of the car. Below the lever is the gas and spark controls.

* * * *

The latest in nifty running-boards is displayed on the roadster—forming a sort of huge V with trailing edges.

* * * *

The front of the machine, where the engine is located, has a sort of a ninth green slope to it, with three daringly cut vents running across it.

* * * *

Tires are high pressure, smooth and blowout and puncture proof until punctured or blown out. The wheels are decked in flowers —daisies, so they look.

* * * *

Two of the latest in parking lights are placed upon the dash- board . . . . coal oil lights guaranteed to go out in the slightest wind. The license number, 10818 is stenciled across the lense. Below them are the two headlamps also operated by coal oil.

* * * *

And to give the picture the patriotic touch, American flags are decked hither and yon.

CHARLES (BUDDY) ROGERS, noted screen star, as he returned to these shores aboard the S. S. Ile de France.

STAR LOSES 4TH MATE

BEVERLY HILLS, Dec. 18.—UP—The fourth marriage of Pauline Frederick ended today in an annulment granted to Hugh Leighton, wealthy hotel magnate, when he testified that she never had become his wife in the true sense of the word.

The hearing was conducted at Leighton's bedside in his luxurious hotel suite by Superior Judge William C. Doran because his nervous condition possibly would have been aggravated by a public trial. The screen and stage actress is on the road in a show.

"When we married back in New York in my apartment last April 20," Leighton testified, "I thought, naturally, that Miss Frederick intended to become my wife. But she never was, even leaving immediately after the ceremony to stay with a woman friend. Enroute to California and in Hollywood we were apart."

INDUSTRIAL GROUP MEETS

An advertising campaign carried on in San Francisco newspapers during 1930 has proved effective the Richmond Industrial Commission heard at its final meeting held in the Palace hotel in San Francisco yesterday.

Harry Ells, president of the association expressed his entire satisfaction with the work done during the year. Greater success for the coming year was predicted at the meeting which heard the advertising report made by Harry W. Wernse, secretary of the group.

Claude Gignoux headed the advertising campaign.

DRY SLAYER HELD DRUNK

SONOMA, Dec. 18.—UP—Charges of drunkeness were made against a federal prohibition agent by a fellow officer at the coroners inquest into the death of Hugo Prassa here today.

M. J. Buckley was the accused agent. He had reported that he fired the bullet that killed Prassa after the latter had opened fire upon himself.

"Buckley was so drunk at the time that he was in no condition to drive," Agent Gus Morgue testified. Morgue said he had left Buckley just before the shooting because he did not want to risk an accident with him.

Sunnyvale Site Opposition Quits

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Sunnyvale in northern California will undoubtedly be selected over Camp Kearney in the southern part of the state for the $5,000,000 navy dirigible base, it was indicated today when congressmen from the southern part of the state withdrew their opposition.

The withdrawal of opposition by Swing and Evans was gained on the promise of northern representatives to support the Coyle bill which provides for the establishment of an auxiliary air base near Camp Kearney at a cost of $200,000.

The Sunnyvale site has every natural advantage for dirigibles and is centrally located for direction of defense and attack for the entire coast.

RELIEF BILLS WIN IN CONGRESS POLL

RULING MADE ON DRY LAW APPEALED

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 18.— The formality of starting toward the United States Supreme court the opinion in which Federal Judge William Clark declared the 18th amendment invalid was disposed of today in Judge Clark's chambers.

Phillip Forman, United States attorney for the district, filed with the jurist a petition for appeal and it was signed immediately.

Forman's petition contended that Judge Clark had made three reversible errors, covered in the following paraphase:

1. In allowing the motion for the defendant.

2. In decreeing that the indictment of William Sprague, charging transportation of liquor, be quashed.

3. In ruling that the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution was invalid and that the national prohibition act, enacted pursuant there to, was therefore unconstitutional and void.

After the brief session in Judge Clark's office, Forman said he would go to Trenton and mail the papers in the case to Solicitor General Thomas B. Thacher in Washington. He said he believed Thacher would apply to the supreme court in January for a decision.

JURY REFUSES TO INDICT LEU

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—UP—Refusal of the grand jury to return an indictment against Leu Fook, Chinese servant arrested on a charge of murder after his mistress, Mrs. Rosetta Baker, was found strangled to death, left only a technicality with which to hold him in jail tonight.

Just before its term of office ended, the grand jury announced it had reconsidered the case and had tabled the indictment that was voted Monday night.

The new jury may continue a study of the case, and for this reason Police Judge Sylvain Lazarus after dismissing the police charges against Leu today, asked that he be held until another appearance in his court next Monday. Attorneys for the Chinese houseboy said they might attempt to have bail set for him.

John P. Murphy, foreman of the outgoing grand jury, said that the jurors refused to return the indictment because their reconsideration of evidence left "very much doubt that Leu had committed the crime"

A coroner's jury had refused to name Leu in its verdict, holding that Mrs. Baker came to her death "at the hand of party or parties unknown." Judge Lazarus claimed police evidence, held by authorities to be "perfect," was too meager.

The result of the balloting was as follows:

BILLS TO BE GIVEN TO HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—UP—President Hoover's relief program triumphed in both houses of congress today. It appeared that bills for expenditure of nearly $150,000,000 may be placed on his desk for signature before Christmas day. Only the $116,000,000 for public works will be immediately available, however.

The house on a party vote of 189 to 133 voted down a Democratic amendment embodying the $60,000,000 drought relief farm loan bill as passed by the senate, and then with only six dissenting votes passed the $30,000,000 loan fund bill approved by Hoover, which does not provide for loans for human food. This bill now goes to conference and house and senate conferees met at once in an attempt to compromise. The bill is an authorization, and must be supplemented by an appropriation bill before the money is available.

The conferees tonight agreed unanimously to fix the drought loan bill fund at $45,000,000 and climinate the provision for food loans. They agreed also to bring the bill up in the house for final action at 1 p. m. tomorrow, and in the senate as soon as the house acts. Thus it probably will be on the president's desk for signa-

HUNT STARTS FOR BODIES OF SIX

DILLION'S BEACH, Dec. 18.—UP—A swift current at the mouth of Tomales bay carried five women and a man to probable death tonight after their small launch had capsized.

Virtually all hope for their safety was given up shortly before midnight but Coast Guardsmen said they would continue their search all night, both at sea and along the Marin county shore.

Two fishermen, Grant and Armand Gray, attempted to rescue the six persons thrown into the ocean and had almost accomplished their goal when their own boat was overturned by one of the victims.

They gave the only clue to the identity of the victims saying the man was called "Tony."

The launch, about 24 feet long, had been cruising on Tomales bay when the engine failed.

As the swift outgoing current carried it through the mouth of the bay, its passengers yelled for help and the Gray brothers answered by putting out to sea in a small boat.

When they were near the disabled boat, a high wave struck it and turned it over. The brothers threw a rope to one of the women in similar manner and the [illegible] was being towed to safety when she clutched at the side of the rescue craft and it turned over.

The fishermen were the strongest swimmers and they started for shore nearly a mile away. Armand was exhausted several hundred yards from the goal and was pulled in by Grant.

DUCE TELLS OF AMERICAN CRISIS

ROME, Dec. 18.—UP—Premier Mussolini gave the senate a dramatic picture today of the effect on Italian finances resulting from the American stock market decline of a year ago.

He was explaining the need for economy when he spoke of the situation in the United States, regarded as "a country of endless and uneclipsable prosperity, where everyone was rich," he said. "The decline in securities in the United States caused the rest of the world to be shell shocked and dumbfounded."

Mussolini reviewed the financial situation in detail:

"It is that the military expenses (of Italy) have increased from 650,000,000 lire (about $32,000,000) before the war to be 5,000,000,000 lire," said the premier, in the course of his speech on a bill reducing salaries of government paid employes. "Since 1922 the military expenses have increased 2,00,000,000 lire.

"Yet all this money stays at home. Can there be any one of you who, while all the world is arming, yet bellowing for peace, finds we should not care for our elementary and indispensable defense or run a mortal risk?"

The premier also said that the deficit in the treasury was now 900,000,000 lire.

"The deficit is not a lost battle nor a national calamity, yet it impels the government to reject all requests for new expenditures," he added.

He blamed the former Catholic party for founding weak banks which failed to the amount of 1,000,000,000 lire.

But the emphasis of Mussolini's speech was a comparison of Italy's economic situation with the existing conditions in other countries.

"We were heading toward port at the end of the summer of 1929, when Italy's situation was satisfactory, but suddenly on Oct. 24 the American crisis broke out and burst like a bombshell," he said. "We were shell shocked and dumbfounded as was the world at the announcement of Napoleon's death for the world was given to understand that America was a country of absolute endless and uneclipsable prosperity where everybody was rich.

"All this stupendous and fantastic prosperity induced a sense of optimism. Among those living on this side of the ocean.

"Then suddenly all this scenery collapsed. Black days followed and [illegible] 20, then 30 and 50 percent of the value. The crisis since then has not abated. Black days are continuing and breadlines are replacing prosperity."

U.S.C. OFFICER KILLS SELF AT HOME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—UP—Warren Bradley Bovard, 45, vice-president of the University of Southern California and member of a family that for 50 years has been linked with the development of the institution, was found dead in bed today of a self inflicted bullet wound.

A bullet had passed through his head from a .45 caliber automatic he had carried during the World War. The gun was found clasped tightly in his hand.

In the bedroom was found a note reading:

"Goodbye, Bleanie, I am going. Warren."

Left Widow

Bleanie was said to be a nickname for Mrs. Bovard, his beautiful 32 year old wife, whom he married in 1923 after a campus romance. He was an official of the school at the time and she was a co-ed.

Mrs. Bovard is in Wichita, Kas. She was said to have gone to Texas to visit her mother after trouble with her husband. Other than domestic difficulties police could find no motive for a suicide.

Bovard was found dead in bed at 7:50 a. m. today by Louis B. McWhirter, who had been living with Bovard since his wife's departure. He was clad in pajamas.

Active at U. S. C.

Bovard had been active in the affairs of the university up to yesterday afternoon, when he returned from a boat trip to San Francisco, where he had gone on business for the school.

Police believed Bovard ended his life between 10:30 and 11 o'clock last night. The time was set after Arthur Baker, a friend of the Bovard family, said he had visited with Bovard from 4:30 p. m. to about 10:30 p. m.

He said they ate some sandwiches, talked of matters of mutual interest and listened to the radio.

Seemed Well

"Mr. Bovard seemed in excellent spirits and said Mrs. Bovard expected to return to Los Angeles about 10 days after Christmas," Baker declared. However, reports from other sources said that there had been a permanent break between the Bovards.

Bovard was a close friend of E. L. Doheny, Jr., who was shot to death by a male secretary who immediately committed suicide. Bovard took the incident greatly to heart.

He was comptroller of the university since 1920 and vice president since 1927. In addition he was a director of the California Bank, once secretary to former Governor William D. Stephens of California, and served during the World War both overseas and in Washington, D. C.

His father George Finley Bovard and his mother were prostrated by the news of their son's death. Dr. Bovard was president of the university from 1903 to 1921. He first became connected with the school 50 years ago.

Funeral services for Warren Bovard will be announced later.

THEATER PARTY FOR KIDDIES SATURDAY

When some 2000 Richmond school children gather in the Fox-California Theater Saturday morning for their annual Christmas party, they are expected to have one of the finest times of their lives, numbers of these eligible to attend intimated yesterday as they planned the gala event.

The yearly happening given under the auspices of the Richmond Merchants association in conjunction with the theater management is expected to be more entertaining this year than it has ever been in previous Decembers.

Children in attendance will produce part of the program when they join in singing Christmas music under the leadership of Lud Johnson. Matilda Meyer's kiddies will also be present to entertain the group.

A film which will appeal to the children has been secured by the management and will be displayed some time after the entertainment gets under way at 10:30 a. m. Boy Scouts of the city will join to usher the children to their seats and aid the police and firemen in keeping order.

Parents were assured that their children will be given the best of protection by Chief of Police Cox and Fire Chief W. P. Cooper and their respective forces.

All children under 12 years of age will be entitled to free admittance.

Two Youthful Car Drivers In Speeding Net

El Cerrito police have fast automobiles even though they are light, and they know how to drive them too.

That was proved early yesterday when two Richmond lads sought evidence of it by speeding past the parked automobile of Officer Arthur Peralta and then slowed down to allow him to start the chase.

There was a chase, which brought the pursued and the pursuing into Richmond at the rate of 70 miles an hour. Finally the pursued was overtaken and John J. Val, 561 Twenty-first street and Roy E. Higgins, 1012 Chanslor avenue were taken to the Richmond police station where they spent the night.

At police headquarters the youths were so bold as to admit they thought they had the faster automobile, police say. No registration certificate was found by police in the youth's car, and they were held pending an investigation.

Yesterday Higgins, driver of the car had charges of violating the speed limit filed against him, when the boys were released from jail.

MAN HELD IN PROBE OF FIRE

At liberty on $5000 bail, Carl Thomason, owner of a Mira Vista barbecue at Roosevelt and San Pablo avenues, is awaiting hearing in the superior court on a charge of arson.

Thomason was arraigned before Justice of the Peace A. A. Alstrom yesterday and was bound over to the court.

Thomason's wife, and a companion, Joe Andrada, who were arrested with Thomason by police Wednesday morning following a fire at the barbecue stand, have been released, it was said last night. Thomason was released on bail early Wednesday night.

Thomason, who is represented by Attorney Thomas M. Carlson has steadfastly maintained his plea of innocence and declared that he will fight the charges.

Sgt. John Kinstrey and Capt. L. E. Jones of the Richmond police department and Chief W. P. Cooper and Capt. H. J. Schmidt testified for the prosecution at the hearing yesterday.

PARIS PLAYBOY TO BE SHOWN AT FOX

A personality that breaks feminine hearts; a smile that's a magnet for popular favor; Chevalier brings all of his bubbling enthusiasm, his joyous, laugh-making to his latest comedy-romance, "Playboy of Paris," a picture with all the sly and roguish appeal of "The Big Pond" with a list of Chevalier song hits that will be as popular as is his "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me"; with a new kind of love making to a new kind of girl, Frances Dee, the Hollywood "extra" girl who skyrocketed into fame when chosen to play opposite the idol of France and America.

"Playboy of Paris" opens tomorrow at the Fox-California Theater. Imagine Chevalier as a waiter by day, a heavy-spending man-about-town by night. Picture him comically involved with three women trying desperately to keep them apart. Think of the hilarious possibilities of a comedy with Chevalier, Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin. That's "Playboy of Paris"

Long before Chevalier made himself the "Idol of America," he was the "Idol of France" and in "Playboy of Paris" he is again set in the city he knows and loves so well. He has a fresh and Frenchy part to play, and he knows how to play it for all the laughs that were written into it. The story itself, 'Playboy of Paris' is to the French what "Charley's Aunt" is to Americans, a perennial farce comedy hit. The screen play was adapted from an original drama, "The Little Cafe," by Tristan Bernard.

saloon which was located at Sixteenth and Macdonald, is a group of interested spectators, wearing derby hats, mustaches and badges.

In the direct background can be seen Gus Johnson, with a small boy seated in his lap.

* * * *

The saloon is decked in banners and bunting and a sign over the door says "Yosemite Lager"—let us proceed rapidly onward.

* * * *

A horse stands in the right background, looking bored. The top of a carriage, or rig, can be seen through the crowd.

* * * *

In the right background is a group of men dressed in various costumes. Evidently there was a parade that day. A gentleman with a black hat is talking to two of the paraders.

* * * *

And last, but not least, we notice that there wern't any pavements. The streets are sandy—and oh boy, how they must have been when it rained.

* * * *

But, seriously, maybe everybody does get a kick out of that picture. But let's wait—some of these days we'll be showing our pictures to the younger generation and then—watch them laugh.

Orv Mohler, Rosita Moreno May Be Married

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—UP—The engagement of Rosita Moreno, screen actress and former New York dancer, and Orville Mohler quarterback on the University of Southern California team, became known here tonight.

Miss Moreno was reluctant to confirm the matter, however, saying:

My age and Orville's studies make any announcement at this time out of the question. Marriage could not be considered for several years.

Miss Moreno and Mohler have been seen together in public almost continually of late. She is 19 and he is 21, with two years of college remaining.

Miss Moreno was born in Madrid, moved to Mexico when six months old and subsequently appeared as a dancer in South America and on the Orpheum circuit. She was the premiere dansuse in "Pleasure Bound" in New York in 1928. In the films she has appeared in the "Santa Fe Trail" and others. Mohler is the son of "Kid" Mohler, prominent old time baseball player and at present coach at West Point.

BRITISH TITLE HEIR IN FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

FLORENCE, Ariz., Dec. 17.—UP—A British surgeon who claims to be heir to an earldom emerged from the silence of his prison cell today to tell of his hopes for freedom and the fortune he says awaits him.

The man is Dr. Alan Alexander Stirling soldier of fortune, student at the Royal College of Surgeons at Edinburg, ships doctor, convicted bigamist—and allegedly grandson of the late 16th Earl of Sterling.

Brushing aside records of nobility that show the Sterling earldom has been extinct since 1759 and that a youth of his name name but of half his age is the present heir to the Baronetcy of Stirling, in Scotland, Dr. Stirling pointed to a copy of provisions of the late earl's will naming him one of two heirs to a vast estate.

Left Fortune

Included in the holdings left by the earl are a fortune of 1,700,000 pounds, three coal mines and practically complete ownership of the Isle of Aaron, a British possession.

Provisions of the will relating to Dr. Stirling were on file today with the Arizona supreme court together with his appeal to set aside his conviction on bigamy charges and the prison term of six to nine years meted out to him.

The attorneys said the 16th earl of Sterling died November 1, 1928, at his hunting box in Kimmarnock, Scotland.

The stipulations of the will which Dr. Stirling claims were the cause of his difficulties—were that he must marry within a year of the earl's death to inherit half the estate. The other half will go to the doctor's cousin, the present Viscount Stirling if he also meets these requirements. Otherwise, each will receive only a shilling and the estate will go to the University of Edinburgh.

Informed that the Earldom of Sterling was shown in records to have been extinct since 1759, Dr. Stirling said he believed it had been restored later by Scottish lords.

Was Questioned

Dr. Stirling was questioned concerning other records, which showed the existence of the Baronetcy of Stirling in Glascow, to which the heir is Alan Alexander Stirling, a Scotsman only 20 years old.

"That is my own name, and there is no other person by that name I know of," Dr. Stirling said. "My own claims are to the earldom."

Dr. Stirling's marital difficulties began in Sunburst, Mont., where he married Elsa Worch on October 8, 1928. He said they parted when he found her with another man, whom she described as her first husband.

He went to Sonora and later to Arizona, where he said he heard of evidence of his wife's former marriage. This marriage, he said he was told, would void their own wedding. Acting on this belief, he married a second wife, Virginia Hovatter, 18 of Wellton Ariz., on June 25, 1929.

Sixth Suspect In Roberry At Nobel Is Held

The sixth and final suspect of the Nobel train robbery is being held in Seattle, where he is being quizzed by postoffice inspectors. Officials admit that they believe him a member of the gang of Frank E. Smith, shot to death recently while attempting escape from Oakland police. However, the officials have not made known his identity.

Federal charges of complicity in the robbery at Nobel are also being faced at Seattle by three other alleged members of the gang. Those being held are R. E. Sherwood, his wife, Dolly, and R. W. Carlton. Authorities are also holding Mrs. Ellen Ellis, alias Smith, widow of the slain bandit leader, in the San Francisco jail.

MIN AND BILL NOW PLAYING AT FOX

Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, as a character team, provide the central figures for "Min and Bill," Metro Goldwyn Mayer's vivid drama of the waterfront, now playing at the Fox-California Theater, and, incidentally, are giving film fans something decidedly new in the form of screen entertainment. Miss Dressler, best known world with her first character role in "Anna Christie," and this time is a dominant, forceful figure who rises to supreme dramatic heights. Beery, who played the sinister Butch in "The Big House," presents a character lovable rather than awesome.

The story depicts the struggle between a foster mother and natural mother for the happiness of a girl, and the tremendous denouement that solves the problem is a decidedly new note in the drama of the screen. There is not a letup in the breathless story, and despite its poignant drama, there are many comedy moods, as well as a charming love romance, to lighten its more sombre moments.

Miss Dressler is a dominant figure as Min, keeper of the waterfront dive, and Beery plays her lover Bill, fishing smack captain, with deft skill. A newcomer to the screen scores heavily in the person of Marjorie Rambeau, seen as the evil Bella. Miss Rambeau gives a performance that rivals her hits in "Eyes of Youth" or "The Goldfish" on the stage.

Oaklander Held On Rum Charges

Charges of reckless driving and illegal possession of liquor are being faced by Elmer E. Nichols, 835 Fortieth street, Oakland, who is in the El Cerrito city jail in lieu of bail.

Nichols was arested by Arthur Peralta following a chase along San Pablo avenue at three o'clock yesterday morning. He gave his occupation as an Oakland motion picture operator. Miss Hazel Mathesen, of 547 Twelfth street, Oakland, who was riding with Nichols, was held in the Richmond city jail until yesterday morning on a charge of being drunk.

Savant Tells Of Skeleton "Finds"

By BYRON R. CUMMINGS
Dean of Archaeology, University of Arizona.
(Written for the United Press)

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 18.—UP—The sudden ending of our expedition to Sonora in search of remnants of a supposed race of giants has left me without direct substantiation of this matter, although indications at the excavation site were that several interesting discoveries were in prospect.

The body of a youth six feet, eight inches tall was our most important find. An examination of the skeleton showed it was that of a young male. It was the largest of the 13 skeletons we found, but the other fossilized bones gave us important knowledge of the type of people that lived in that vicinity some 2,000 years ago.

We were unable to proceed farther toward the place where it was indicated the skeletons of more adults were buried. The unfriendliness of the Mexicans who leased the land and the attitude of the Yaqui natives made it impossible for us to stay.

Peculiar Skulls

The shape of the skulls was a peculiar characteristic of the skeletons. The craniums of some of the men were more than a foot long, as our earlier information indicated. This was a characteristic which indicates they were connected with the "Pit-house" people of Arizona, evidence of which have been uncovered in the past.

We could not determine in the brief time at our disposal whether or not the skeletons were those of a "normal" sized people. We had no way of determining the exact age of the children whose skeletons we found, but I do not believe the remains of a youth six feet, eight inches tall indicate normal height as we regard the term today. The present Yaqui natives are of short stature.

There is no question that we found a heretofore unknown burial ground and I believe the relics we found justified our expedition. No one can say now, naturally, whether or not we would have found evidence of a race of giants, but the extent of the discoveries gave rise to our hopes. I am sure the burial ground holds many important relics.

Found Urns

We found, one foot below the surface, two small urns containing the charred remains of human bones, evidently cinerary urns. In several places at about the same depth we found several pockets containing fine fragments of human bones and ashes mixed with the soil.

It would seem that some were too poor to provide an urn, consequently dug a hole in the ground, emptied remains of the cremation into the hole and covered it up. Just below there we encountered river boulders in spots. Below these, at an average depth of three feet, we found skeletons of humans. Most of them lay on their backs, stretched at full length.

We uncovered in all 13 skeletons, five of which were evidently men. All but one were six feet or more, but none gave evidence of being of abnormal stature. There were evidently tall, well built people, but not a race of giants.

All pottery that we found was course gray or black ware in the shape of small urns.

These people were evidently tall well formed and of an exceedingly crude culture. From investigations we were able to make in the vicinity in the short time at our disposal. We discovered no evidence of structures of permanent homes.

Relief Program Wins In Senate Battle

ture Saturday. There is little doubt it will be agreed to in its present form.

Food Loans Seen

The conferees wrote in a provision to allow President Hoover to allocate funds for food loans if he sees fit. So far he has opposed the principle of such loans.

The senate, after a bitter debate on Hoover's personal record as a wartime relief leader, gave in by a vote of 42 to 39, and receded from its amendment which would have prevented Hoover from shifting the $116,000,000 public works appropriation from one project to another as he saw fit. Senate administration leaders, however, gave in on the Couzens amendment to require local workmen on these projects be paid at the highest prevailing wage. The senate insisted on this, and the measure went back to conference for another attempt to batter down the adamant state of the house for the president's program without the change of a single essential feature.

The house also passed by unanimous consent a bill giving the federal farm loan board an additional $150,000,000 for its price stabilization operations, bringing the total fund of the board above the $400,000,000 mark. The limit of the revolving fund is fixed by law at $500,000,000 and Chairman Alexander Legge has said the board will conclude its price operations within two years.

Changes Made

The senate debate centered around a charge by Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, Dem., Tenn., that Herbert Hoover as wartime relief director had never made a final itemized report as requested by law on a $100,000,000 appropriation made for the relief of European suffering. McKellar said that without discussing Hoover's personal integrity, he felt that his record was such that the senate should restrict the expenditure of the public works money.

This brought from Senator Otis Glenn, Repn., Ill., a heated retort imputting to McKellar charges that the President was "in effect an embezzler." In an oratorical effort, Glenn denied that the President was a "poltroon, a thief, an embezzler, and a misappropriator of public funds" McKellar's speech, he said, "If it were not an act of ignorance would almost be an act of treason."

Regret Expressed

Senators Wesley L. Jones, Repn., Ore., read into the record a number of documents which, he said, showed the $100,000000 European relief funds were entirely accounted for.

The Couzens admendment to require local labor at prevailing prices, also opposed by House Leaders and General Lytle Brown chief of army engineers, then came up and developed such strength that Jones withdrew a motion to recede the Senate then formally insisted on this amendment, and the measure went to conference.

Farm Money

The supplementary appropriation to make money available to the farm board is not expected to be passed until after Jan. 1. The money will be advanced to farmers in the 21 drought states, for use in buying stock-feed, equipment, seed, and gasoline for tractors.

Chairman Jones of the Senate appropriation committee said he did not expect to be able to call Chairman Arthur Woods of the President's unemployment commission, as ordered by the LaFollette resolution adopted yesterday until after the holidays. Woods is to be questioned on possible steps to relief distress and unmployment.

Wood, anticipating the Senate's questions, said tonight he had no new reports showing the extent of unemployment to make public, and said his main recommendation would be to "slash red tape" so that public works could be started more quickly after they were authorized."

The American Girl of 1930

THE average American boy of 1930 is an improvement over the same composite lad of twenty years ago, B. K. Atkinson, educational director of the Boys' Club Federation of America, has just told the International Boys' Work Council Conference, meeting in St. Louis. He itemizes a dozen different points on which the boy of today shows a gain over the boy of 1910.

Here's where this woman's column is going to set down an equally optimistic estimate of the average American girl of 1930, as compared with the girl of a score of years ago. We are frankly enthusiastic about the girl of today—and we believe that her mother, not to say her Daddie, will agree with us. In her favor we find the following "dandy dozen" points:

The average girl of today is a far better physical specimen than the girl of yesterday. From babyhood she has had more sensible food, clothes and play. She has not been kept in the house sewing, but has played outdoor games and gone on hikes and camping trips. She has had almost as much physical freedom as her brother, and the gain in health and strength is incalculable.

She is better protected in her innocence because a wise mother has saved her from the dangers of ignorance—or the greater dangers of half-knowledge.

She wants to be educated to earn, and plans as naturally for a job of some sort as if she were the average American boy.

She is better friends with her parents, because they respect her individuality and try to guide her by explanation rather than by coercion.

She reads a certain amount of trash and sees more of it at the movies—but at least she doesn't have to be a hypocrite and hide naughty French novels under the bed.

She dresses better than the often dowdy young girl of twenty years ago. The girl of today has ideas about her clothes that are decided but often sound.

She is a bit foolish about diet, but, unlike her predecessors, she doesn't wear tight corsets, or think that, in order to be charming, she must be "a frail slip of a thing."

She still, on occasion, considers herself misunderstood at home, but is too busy and has too many good times to make a cult of it, as young girls used to do.

She is adventurous, and a bit reckless—but these are the defects of her virtues of courage and vigor.

She uses slang and some profanity, but, if her manner of expression can be criticized, it is nevertheless true that she has ideas to express.

She is more mature mentally and socially, and therefore a more stimulating personality to her elders as well as to her contemporaries.

She is more frank, honest, logical in deciding what she wants from life and in going after it.

VARIUM ET MUTABILE SEMPER FEMINA

For years I've scorned the very thought
Of conjugal felicity,
I've never had the slightest yen
For wedded domesticity,
I thought that dreams would compensate
For joys that grace the married state.
But now—I hope it's not too late
To change my mind completely.

It may be just that I am bored
With being circumspect!
Or that I've so few memories stored—
I can't quite recollect
What really caused this change of view,
I think that it was largely due
To having dreamt a dream of You—
You've changed my mind completely.

Whate'er the cause, the facts remain,
Nor can they be denied, sir,
The inference, I hope, is plain—
With common sense applied, sir—
And when I meet You some bright day
(Not very, very far away),
I trust that nothing You will say
Will change my mind completely!

EUKA LAYLIE.

THE STRONGER SEX

Of the two young health champions who won in the 4-H Club national health contest just closed, twenty-year-old William Ross Bodenhamer of Missouri scored 98.7 per cent, but fifteen-year-old Marion E. Snydergaard of Iowa scored 99.7 per cent, one per cent ahead of William and the highest score ever attained in the nine years during which contests have been held. Another feminine record!

SOME EONS AFTER

There is so much to be forgotten:
The patter of feet,
A tree-lined street,
After these bones are rotten.

There are things I'll remember eons after—
Honeysuckle in the rain
And the sweet ache of pain
And soft gurgle of a baby's laughter.

When my bones are clay on some Tuscan hill . . .
The caress of soft lips,
The pressure of finger-tips,
These I'll remember. I will, I will!

RITA M. DONOHUE.

WOMEN ARE NOT TO BLAME

In Chicago Miss Jane Addams recently read the verdict of accidental death at a coroner's inquest served by the first all-woman jury impaneled in the State of Illinois. Why should Chicago get ahead of New York in having a jury of women? Ask Albany, which conscientious women citizens have implored for years to pass a bill making women eligible as jurors in this state.

PLEA

Leave me here to rest a moment,
Time, go run ahead of me.
I am weary of this racing—
Can you never let me be?

You will win, for so 'tis written.
Let me once know how it feels
Just to pause, one precious moment—
Time, stop running at my heels!

GATES HEBBARD.

WORDS FROM A WISE MAN

(Robert L. Boomer, banker, speaking to the Women's National Republican Club.)

"In the future woman has an extraordinary contribution to make in the determination of national policy, and that is intuition. There is no field of activity where intuition is so valuable and so necessary as in international affairs. Women with their intuitive sense have a vast opportunity to see into the future and with the ballot to turn their visions into reality."

Good to Remember.

Instead of using the corks in the bottom of salt and pepper shakers put a piece of court plaster over the opening—you will not have to pry out pieces of broken cork and the shakers will stand more firmly.

Add a little washing soda to the bluing water when rinsing the clothes — this will prevent that streaky appearance.

Use vinegar instead of water when moistening the stove polish—it will not require so much rubbing to produce a bright polish.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

In almost every diet list prepared by food experts, and in practically every list of menus devised with a view to economy, liver is suggested as the main dish at dinner quite often. So much educational work in dietetics has been done of recent years, that it is not necessary to explain that liver is of almost unparalleled value in the diet. What does need explaining, apparently, is why it should be included among economical foods.

KAREN HOLLIS

A short time ago, a series of economical menus prepared by Edith Shapcott, food expert of the Home Making Center, appeared in this department and immediately protests came in by letter and by telephone because liver was included. Those who protested were thinking of calves liver at seventy-five cents or more a pound, and they can hardly be blamed for objecting to that. They should, however, be read right out of the ranks of budgeteering housewives for not realizing that beef liver is the choice of all who watch their expenditures carefully. Beef liver retails at about twenty-five cents a pound in the chain-store markets, and within recent weeks has been priced as low as nineteen cents a pound. According to research scientists, calves liver and beef liver are equally nutritious and rich in vitamine and iron content.

Liver should always be cooked at a very low temperature as excessive heat toughens the meat. Sauteing and broiling are the most common methods of cooking it, but when served as the main dish at dinner it is more attractive when cooked with vegetables.

BAKED LIVER WITH VEGETABLES

2 pounds liver
1 large onion, sliced
1 tablespoon bacon drippings
2 cups celery, diced
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup flour
½ cup hot water
4 slices bacon
8 small potatoes
8 stalks asparagus (canned)
1 cup tomatoes (canned)
2 tablespoons catsup

Wipe the liver with a damp cloth and with a sharp knife remove skin and veins. Rub with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Heat the bacon drippings in a skillet, add celery and onions and cook for five minutes. Add liver and brown on both sides slightly. Remove to a casserole, add hot water and arrange the strips of bacon over the top of the meat. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for one-half hour. Then add the potatoes and asparagus and continue coking until potatoes are tender. Remove the lid and continue cooking until bacon is crisp. Place meat and vegetables on a serving dish, add flour to liquid in pan and as it thickens add tomatoes and catsup. Cook until well blended, pour around the meat and serve.

Her Own Type Jewelry for Christmas

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930.

NOW all of the shops on Madison Avenue and Fifth Avenue are displaying beautiful old pieces of jewelry scraped together from some one's family stores. I told you some months back that this sort of jewelry would be the vogue, and this statement is only to prove that smart women see it the same way and are going in for it strong.

Nothing could be nicer for a Christmas gift, but don't give it round promiscuously. You know it takes the older and more sophisticated type to wear this jewelry, and then for dinner dressing rather more than for formal evening wear. The usual young things don't get away with it any too well except they be the real demure Victorian type, in which case in their period Victorian dresses they can shine forth most youthfully under the intricate and sometimes quite elaborate workings of this strictly old fashioned jewelry.

Heavy, Old-Fashioned and Real

THERE are, for instance, those heavy cabuchon pendants hanging on massive gold chains. There are necklaces made of wrought gold with seed pearls set round colored stones. There are bracelets of this same genre and big, heavy earrings made to match all types of this heavy jewelry—notable among them being the round settings of seed pearls with colored stones.

Of course, if you are wearing an elaborate necklace of this sort, you don't want to crowd the picture by putting on earrings too, for the earrings alone—perhaps with bracelets to correspond—are quite sufficient to carry the day of decoration.

This jewelry certainly goes best with the plainer sorts of dresses—not with beads certainly or with the ultrafluffy sorts of chiffons. It is loveliest with quaint taffetas or any of the stiffer fabrics, remnants and reminders in themselves of those older and more picturesque days.

A big ring to be worn on the first finger is a part of this old fashioned era. It is a stunning thing with its one large stone and filigree gold or its cluster of seed pearls around a colored handsome stone.

Copied in Paste

COURT jewelry has been copied and lowered and lowered in price. The designs are authentic, the effect something to be wondered at. There are bracelets, long, marvelously shaped earrings, necklaces too, and all of these go mighty well with the more formal type of evening dress, for their very obvious sparkle and glitter suits this kind of thing gorgeously.

They're no longer exclusively for those who travel in court circles. They've come down within the reach of those who move in a mass along Sixth Avenue. These don't bear close inspection, but, as our mothers used to say, "If you laugh a lot you can get away with them."

Original and Modern

THE girl who goes in for modernity in one or many of its interpretations demands modern jewelry to carry out the scheme. Don't give her paste or Victorian stuff. If she did wear it she would only look all dressed up with no place to go. She needs her own lately designed jewelry to be in keeping with the scheme of the rest of her dressing and living.

She—this young lady of whom I am speaking—is usually extremely young or, whatever her age, intensely modern, in both spirit and expression.

She will want, for instance, a string of baquette diamond bracelets—or imitation ones—to be worn all in a bunch on one arm, or several on each side of a wider bracelet.

There are earrings for her—very long single lines of baquette diamonds with colored stones (ruby, emerald, sapphire, amethyst) on the extreme ends and fairly touching her shoulders.

Pink coral jewelry is increasing in importance. The necklaces are rather large and hunky with interesting things done to them in the way of their stringing. One, for instance, has three white coral knob beads on either side between the smaller bunched pink ones, and from the ends tassels in strands of the pink are appended.

A clip watch makes a darling Christmas present and the idea is to clip it on the inside of the flap of your handbag so that the telling of time becomes one of the easy—not to say decorative—matters of a day.

Some bags are even made to accommodate these little watches with a flap on the outside that can be lifted up to find the hour conveniently. Fob watches, too, are good presents.

Very young girls are wearing wreaths of artificial flowers instead of jewelry about their necks. Lilies of the valley with a rosebud here and there, forget-me-nots, little nubbly yellow flowers. These are not inexpensive but they are novelties and much appreciated by young things who know how much smartness is contained in their encircling sweetness.

Fitting the Fabric To the Chair

THREE elements guide our choice of fabric for furniture other than our personal liking. First, there is the question of the color; second, that of the pattern; third, that of the texture. Strong dark colors, robust reds, vigorous greens, powerful golden yellows, belong with the heavier type of furniture such as English Jacobean, French or Italian or Spanish Renaissance.

Patterns likewise that are bold and blunt, incisive in aspect belong here. They may be large or small. Very soft greens, blues, golds, peach and their companions belong with the lighter, more delicate forms such as Heppelwhite, Sheraton and the later French types. Likewise the patterns are lighter and more delicate—usually sedate for the English forms and more airy and graceful for those of the French. In between these two extremes come the medium greens and reds and blues, suitable for the furniture of medium weight like the familiar Chippendale forms.

Textures follow suit—the heavier ones for the earlier furniture and the smoother, lighter ones for the later pieces. And between come the medium weight for the Chippendale types.

Be Good to Your Face

NOW is the season of giving—giving not only gifts but time and precious energy, giving ourselves. Look close at a shopping crowd and you will see what we mean. Note the tense faces, the ginghamed brows, the tired look around the eyes, the sallowness and the pallor that spell face fatigue. Look at the drooping shoulders or the "tight," nervous shoulders. It certainly is a season of giving.

And as the days melt away the faces grow more tense and the lines in the brows deeper and the pallor and the sallowness permanent. Unless, unless one is wise and takes thought for one's self in time. Unless one is unselfishly selfish enough to relax or to systematize or to do both.

You can spare your face and form and nerves many a scar by shopping early, for example. Nor do we mean early in the month. No, early in the morning, before the salespeople and you grow weary and fretty, and the crowds and the atmosphere intolerable.

Then do take time out for a good wholesome, leisurely lunch at a table—not a counter. It will not only rest you, it will positively rebuild and renew you—iron the kinks out of your nervous system and your face, you know—make you feel that Christmas shopping is not such a terrible ordeal after all.

Of course the finest and best thing you can do for your face—in fact your whole self—after a buying excursion in the shops these mad days, is to end your tour in the fragrant pence and quiet of a beauty establishment. A beauty establishment that knows something about how to deal with "shopper's face."

Restful, soothing treatments are what most faces need these days, and a judicious admixture of stimulation and bracing to pep up the skin. A morning of shopping at this time of year is enough to pull down even a young and ordinarily self-sufficient facial contour and steal the bloom from the most radiant cheek.

You see the point of all this, of course. You see how essential it is to keep yourself looking and feeling fit and fine, so that genuine joy will go out with your gifts—so that you will really look joyous.

Tired eyes and a drooping figure are quite enough to take the joy out of any Christmas party—yes, and for everybody concerned. It is so important that you look well at the Christmas board. So important to all the family. So in your thought and zeal for the rest do not forget to be good to your face!

YOU CAN'T BLAME HIM

DR. EINSTEIN fears American newspaper reporters. You can hardly blame him. Here's a sample of what he might get:

REPORTER NO. 1—Doc, we want you to give us ship news boys a little interview.

EINSTEIN—I have nothing to say that would be of interest.

NO. 2—Doc, would you mind explaining the fourth dimension for readers of the Evening Howitzer?

EINSTEIN—I am afraid it would take too long.

NO. 3—Well, do you think the American flapper has a fourth dimension?

EINSTEIN—That is not a rational question.

NO. 4—If she ain't got a fourth dimension, what do you think of the American flapper's length, breadth and thickness?

ENSTEIN—I have no opinion on the matter.

NO. 5—Could I quote you as saying the American flapper is too thick?

EINSTEIN—No!

NO. 4—Say, doc, who are the only six people in the world that understand the Einstein theory? Is Senator Borah one of them?

EINSTEIN—I hardly think so.

NO. 4—Can I take that as a knock at Borah?

EINSTEIN—I do not even know the gentleman.

NO. 4—You say he don't understand the Einstein theory, don't you? Well, what's the idea of attacking the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that way?

EINSTEIN—I have not attacked the Foreign Relations Committee.

NO. 4—You just let out a broadside against Borah, didn't you?

EINSTEIN—Mr. Borah is a gentleman of whom I know nothing.

NO. 5—Okay, we heard you. Borah is a gentleman who knows nothing.

EINSTEIN—But I did not——

NO. 6—Doc, now give us the names of the six people that understand your theory. We'll call it a sort of all-American mathematical team.

EINSTEIN—Gentlemen, there might be a dozen who understand my theory of relativity.

NO. 7—Oh, a dozen, eh? How about quoting you that the dozen consists of Henry Ford, Babe Ruth, Clara Bow, the Yale basketball team and the Four Marx brothers?

EINSTEIN—That would be a misstatement.

NO. 6—It would make a good story, wouldn't it? You know, you need the publicity, doc. You came over here to go into vaudeville, didn't you?

EINSTEIN—Preposterous! I came here for scientific study.

NO. 8—What do you think of miniature golf?

EINSTEIN—I have no impression on the subject.

NO. 4—Well, how would your theory of relativity apply to Rudy Vallee's crooning?

EINSTEIN—I have no idea. Now, gentlemen, you must excuse me.

NO. 5—Just a minute. What's the Einstein theory based on, anyway, doc? I just want a little statement for Evening Blah readers.

EINSTEIN—The thory is that space is non-existent. Now I must go.

NO. 6—O-ho! There ain't no such thing as space, hey? You claim the Rocky Mountains are a myth, for instance.

EINSTEIN—I make no such claim. Now, gentlemen ——

NO. 7—Look here, doc. If space is non-existent, then a vacuum cleaner is your ideal. Can I quote you as favoring any particular brand?

EINSTEIN—Gentlemen, I am very busy. You really must excuse me.

CAMERA MAN—Oh, no! Not yet, doc. Come over here and give us camera guys a crack at you. Just sit on top of that life preserver, cross your legs and be waving at the Statue of Liberty.

EINSTEIN—Gentlemen, PLEASE!

CAMERA MAN NO. 2—Now, just a minute, doc. This time we want you with the life preserver around your neck and you're sucking a lollypop.

EINSTEIN—That is positively all! I am very busy!

CAMERA MAN—NO. 3—Just one more shot for the camera boys, doc. Now we want you to come up on B deck and pose with Miss Lily Lux, the movie "It" kid, like you was explaining your Einstein theory to her. See?

(But Dr. Einstein has jumped overboard and is already swimming with a strong stroke back to Germany.)

THIS AND THAT

Another good way of speeding up business is to declare a moratorium on traffic lights.

Congress demands rigid economy from the government. It means the bureaus will dye old corset strings to use for red tape.

Pittsburgh scientists have perfected an electrical ear that detects loose bearings in a motor. It still requires a more sensitive device to detect the rattle in an apartment house radiator, however.

The government reports that chestnut trees in this country are gradually disappearing. But it's all right so long as Joe Miller's joke book remains intact.

A fund now amounts to $6,500,000 for a home for New York journalists. They must be planning on gold typewriters for the boys and blue diamond pencils for the copy desk.

Secretary Of Jury Is Named

MARTINEZ, Dec. 18. — O. K. Smith will be secretary and Otis Loveridge, foreman of the 1931 Contra Costa county grand jury, it was announced today.

Smith, a resident of this city is also chairman of the county planning commission. Meetings will be held on Wednesdays subject to the call of the foreman, it was said.

No meeting is expected to be held until after the first of January when committee assignments will be announced.

Prisoners Taken To Weaverville

MARTINEZ, Dec. 18.—Arrested in a rooming house here and held for Lassen county authorities Herbert Keith, 22, and Newell Judkins, 26, were taken back to Weaverville today to face charges of robbing a woman there of $200.

The men were faced by San Joaquin authorities as suspects in a Tracy service station robbery, but were released of that suspicion. Keith is said to have confessed to the Weaverville crime and to have implicated Judkins.

Sheriff J. B. Leavitt of Lassen county returned the prisoners to the north.

Women Bag Buffalo In Arizona Hunt

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 18.—UP—A woman who has hunted game since childhood reached Phoenix today with her greatest prize—a half-ton buffalo brought down during Arizona's annual buffalo hunt in House Rock valley, near the Grand Canyon.

Mrs. E. V. Tarbell of Phoenix, one of the few women ever to take part in the hunt, felled the huge bull buffalo with two shots from her rifle after a 10-mile chase by automobile and afoot. With Mrs. Emma K. Haynie of Tucson, the other woman on the hunt, she won the praise of the eight men hunters for stopping the big fellows in their tracks.

"The women had much better luck than the men," Mrs. Tarbell said. "I crippled my buffalo with a shot in the foreleg and then stopped him with another in the neck. Mrs. Haynie, I think, finished her buffalo in three shots."

Some of the men, though, had difficulty cornering the shaggy animals on the wide floor of the valley. Mayor E. C. Seale of Prescott chased his quarry by automobile for 25 miles.

"The buffalo are very tricky," Mrs. Tarbell explained. "They run a ways and stop while the hunter approaches. When I got out of the car to draw a bead on him he ran off again."

The buffalo hunt, a spectacle unparralled in American sport, has only one modern note—the presence of automobiles. Even L. E. Bayless, state game commissioner and supervisor of the hunt, used a roadster to chase the buffalo over the 40-mile valley.

The cowboys rode horses, though," Mrs. Tarbell said. "They came down from the nearby ranges to round up the herd for us. Then they cut off an old bull and shouted: 'There he goes! Go get him!' After that it was up to us.

"The cowboys would ride along with us for a while as we chased the buffalo but nearly always their horses were winded before the buffalo was shot."

The annual hunt, sponsored by the state, is the only occasion on which the buffalo may be shot. A specified number of buffalo are selected from the herd each year and an equal number of hunters are permitted to kill one each.

"We keep the herd filled with young buffalo in this way," Bayless said. "The young bulls will run the old ones out of the herd anyway, so the hunt just gets rid of them a little sooner."

The hunters are selected at the state fair each year, and for three days pitch camp in House Rock valley for the duration of the chase. The herd this year had 97 buffalo, but the hunt reduced the number to 87.

the affair. Arnold Sign company will donate show cards for the same purpose.

Large Crowd Seen

No other meeting is expected to be held until after the holidays although it was said last night that the affair should be kept before the public's mind as often and as intensively as human effort will permit.

A capacity crowd is expected to be present when Gay's Red Peppers open the evening with their peppy dance band. The music will be furnished without cost to the sponsors of the event.

The service of this band was offered as soon as it was made public that such an entertainment was scheduled.

New Members

In addition to the already large committee working to make the dance a success five other names were added last night representing as many organizations.

Ralph Anderson of the Richmond Twenty-Thirty club; Miss Emma Pearman, Business and Professional Women's club; Mrs. J. C. Eaton, West Side Improvement club; Mrs. Clara Barry, South Side Improvement club; Mrs. Harry Bryant, Civic Center club, were those named as representatives of the new organizations which will give their entire support to the affair.

After Jan. 1 intensive work will get under way and final reports on the progress of the committee arranging the event will be heard at the meetings to be held at those times.

By vote of the group last night it was decided to allow the chairman to use his discretion as to when the next meeting should be called.

New French Cabinet Has Narrow Escape

PARIS, Dec. 18.—UP—Premier Theodore Steeg, beset by the resignations even of members of his government and facing a hostile chamber of deputies, managed to survive his first parliamentary test tonight by the narrow margin of seven votes.

The chamber granted the new government, admittedly a makeshift and not given long to live even by its supporters, a vote of confidence by 291 to 284.

The chamber was the usual scene of turbulence and excitement as Steeg, the third attempt a government since the defeat of Andre Tardius two weeks ago, made his ministerial declaration and asked for the chamber's support.
